Coach Lombardi

Off the Field

Coach Lombardi holds a Bachelor of Arts degree, majoring in Physical Education and minoring in Athletic coaching, from Ohio State University. He also holds a Master's degree in Intercollegiate Athletic Administration from Western Iowa University. Coach is originally from Frankfort, Kentucky, but currently resides in Owensboro, Kentucky, where he lives with his wife, Alena, and his two sons, Jake (age 16), and Kinzley (21 months).

Coach Lombardi has made it his mission to make statements on and off the field. Coach developed, implemented, and is responsible for the oversight of "Beds and Books." This program was initiated for the football team at Northern State University to regularly visit local elementary schools to encourage students to read and enhance their reading abilities and skills. Coach Lombardi felt that creating this program would allow his student-athletes to be role models in the local school system. He also felt that it would allow his players to give back to a community supports their program. During his current time at Ohio Wesleyan University, he also developed and implemented the "Pay It Forward Campaign" - a community outreach program for members of the football team whereby teammates volunteered in the community providing service at organizations like the local soup kitchen.

While at Ohio State, Coach Lombardi also developed a comprehensive recruiting plan including a handbook for their coaching staff. This included outlines of job descriptions and responsibilities, a comprehensive plan for covering recruiting areas, and strategies for both individual coaches and staff as a whole. The handbook also addressed Best Practices and Compliance Guidelines.

Why Coach Lombardi?

As an up-and-coming coach, Coach Lombardi prides himself on building relationships with those around him. He is a firm believer that people "do not care how much you know, until they know how much you care." Coach Lombardi is very intentional on being a "players coach." When he says that, he means it in a way that he will always put his players first, no matter what. He believes it is imperative to explain to his student-athletes the "Why" of everything they do. If they understand why they are doing what he tells them to do on the field - it creates a stronger relationship built upon trust that extends off the field. Coach Lombardi has proven to coach his players hard - but love them even harder. He strives to develop his student-athletes into well-rounded athletes and people on and off of the field.

Coach Lombardi's coaching experience transitioning from high school to college has allowed him to become an elite recruiter, as well as a knowledgeable X's and O's coach from different position perspectives. He has used his knowledge and experience to help several of his student-athletes attain opportunities to get to the next level.
